

*Outing the Cat Lady:
Embracing Your Feline Addiction with Style*

About the Illustrator:
REBEKAH WELLS

Rebekah Wells is American by birth but now lives with her husband, Mervyn “Maz” Wells and three Siamese cats, Kelso, Brechin, and Jura, in Lichfield, Staffordshire, England, where she is devoted to both the cats and the husband. A difficult breed, at times, she admits, and a bit fussy, but the cats love him and so does she.

She has been drawing since the age of two, and as she sharpened her skills as well as her pencils, she illustrated the York County (Nebraska) Fire Department Cookbook and provided cartoons and medieval illustrations for The Rolling Scone, a Society for Creative Anachronism publication. She is frequently commissioned to create original art for greeting cards and occasionally for a portrait.

When not drawing, painting, carving, or otherwise creating art, she enjoys roaming the English countryside with her husband, exploring abandoned abbeys and crumbling castles, visiting celestial cathedrals and magnificent manor houses, for her true passion in life is history. And when she does sit still for a moment, she can be found indulging in sixteenth century blackwork or historical costuming.
